Well, that may be, but I urge others not to react to it. Also, I may be out of line, and I am not referencing THIS thread, but I think some people are actually reporting solely for the purpose of aggravating others. If this is true, it is wrong for this reason: such persons have allowed their own judgment on the frequency of reports that is appropriate to be clouded by their desire to continue to wage a war against their opponents. I think both sides need to recognize the overall detriment their actions and comments will have. As was noted, we don't want to stifle freedom to post, nor do we want to encourage bad judgment or spite-inspired postings.
