Personally I do not believe what some of the posters on Valley say what they caught. The Prof and I fished on the 19th and he got one and me zip. That is over 60 years combined experience. We met up with a couple of guys who had 10 more years on us and they were skunked. With the stream so low on the 19th and bright sun and gin clear water not even Lefty could catch 9 fish.

You've most certainly been fishing longer than I have.

You're also most likely a better angler.

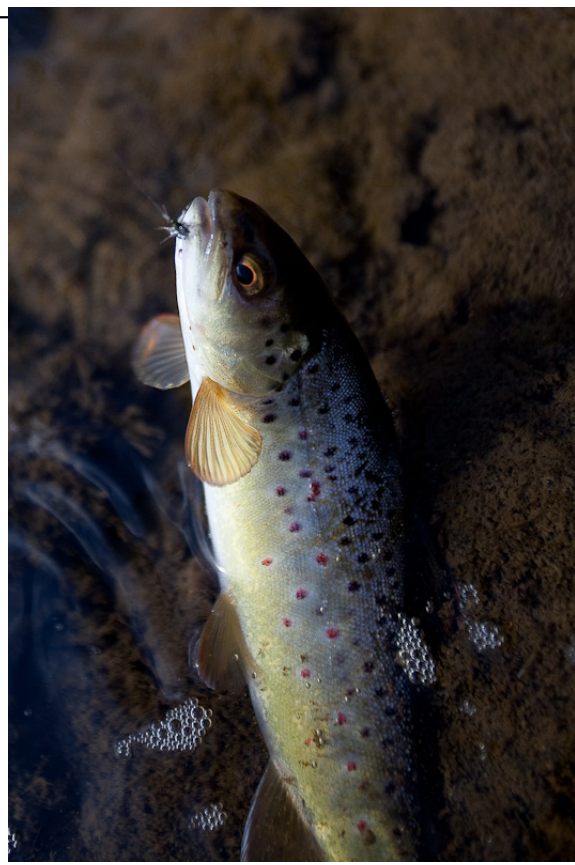

However, neither of these facts make me a liar.

Plus, I'd like to think that if I was going to post full of crap stream reports, that I could come up with something better than the glory filled tale of all the dinks I caught one day.
