

---

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Valley Creek, Chester County, 3/19/2012

Re: Valley Creek, Chester County, 3/19/2012

Author: : fadeaway263

Date: : 2012/3/21 10:36:19

URL:

Not really focusing so much on Greenlander. More directed on the 20 fish a day guys on Valley. Maybe John Powers post is correct. The fish have gotten dumber in the past 2 years. My apologies to GL if he thought I was accusing him of lying. I'd rather chalk it up as a grumpy old man being frustrated after wading from the pedestrian bridge OTP up to the turnpike and then back down all the way to where Little Valley almost meets Valley and then back to the pedestrian bridge with nothing to show for it but sore feet. Quote:

englishprof wrote:

Greenlander,

Exactly what I was thinking. Why the hell would someone lie about 6" and under fish????? I have no doubt that you got them. I had damn near that many hits but only the one hooked and brought in (it was a bit larger). I say good job and I wouldn't put money on who's the better angler!!!! By the way, the number of years fishing has very little to do with anything when we really only started fishing this Creek two years ago and seriously only a few months ago.