Definetly no need for a sink tip unless the stream you're fishing is large. As other's have said just use a weighted fly or split shot. Keep the streamer relatively small/light as a 3wt isn't going to throw big ugly articulated stuff. I'd suggest tying up size 10 or so buggers of varying weights and colors.

I know my 3wt won't throw streamers much bigger than that. Buggers are great on little native streams because you can nymph it, swing it, or strip it. That versatility really comes in handy because most of the time there is only 1 angle of approach that won't spook the fish and it is dictated by the terrain.
