Jay,

Don't give up on that spot. The oft heard claim that muskies are "loners" and don't hang out together is nonsense. They're not schooling fish but muskies often hang out in small groups fairly close together. I often see muskies in rivers laid up in pairs throughout the year. There's a good chance there are more fish in that section....at least while weather conditions remain stable. Make note of the water temp and conditions and check that spot again next year under similar conditions.
