Thanks for all the input so soon. Doing a little bit of looking it seems like my eyes are bigger than my wallet. But who's isn't. Just a few questions about reels. What are the advantages/dis of different drag systems. From my original post I guess I meant a wider range of drag settings rather than fine tune to nothing. I've heard complaints from other fishermen of their drags not being able to be tuned for many situations. And i see that on most larger reels they are large or extra large arbor. Is this just strictly for holding more line and backing or are there other reasons for this.
