Not a smart phone guy, so useless to me. At the FF show last year, there was a guy selling a card for car based GPS systems. Thought it looked pretty cool, but incomplete.

It had the ATW and class A list imbedded. I really don't care, those are well known and easy to find. But I told the guy as soon as they add the natural repro list, I'm on board. I think it'd be do-able, they have the natural repro list overlayed on google maps, and I think the Garmin units are based off of that. If they have updated that app to include the natural repro list, someone please let me know!
