

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : EERRR NYMPHING

Re: EERRR NYMPHING

Author: : wetnet

Date: : 2012/3/31 17:22:36

URL:

Quote:

Fredrick wrote:

I'm still new to this sport and want to pick alot of your brains, about nymphing. First I would like to know what kind of leader to use specifically tippet size and lenth. And how do you know if you are getting a good drift ,and what to look for to tell if its a good drift and if the fly is getting down deep enough to the fish since most of fish now are hugging the bottom now. Also tandem rigs with two nymphs, is this a good way to nymph and what would be a good setup to use through winter. Also any info on different techniques such high sticking, swing , ect. Any info that you guys and girls can give, would be very helpful for me on my quest for knowledge .

Thanks Fred

Break it down. Do one thing at a time and how good are you at tying knots? Really, it kills me to have to re-rig. So my leader is never longer than my forearm with hand included. I have long arms. My tippet almost double ..a length from my nose to the stretch of my arm. Start there. At least you will know where you started and you'll have a base point. Right or wrong.

Drift....look at your line. loop forward like a sail with the wind blowing it downstream you are too slow, a fish takes it and you won't get the set. Loop like a sail against the current (boat getting sent up-stream), It means your nymph is out front of your line which is good just don't let it run away. You'll figure it out.