

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Southwest

Southwest

Author: : Kill3ducks1deer

Date: : 2012/4/6 15:32:42

URL:

I was out at Dutch forks in Washington Co. fly fishing yesterday when some type of hatch occurred. At the time I didn't think any thing of it until fish started going crazy. I didn't take any pics, no camera with me but they seem to be grey in color and pretty small. I am new to fly fishing and have no clue what it could have been. Most hatch information I could find doesn't really talk about western PA so I was curios if anyone on here would be able to take a guess at what it could be.