no, pretty sure it's a separate category.

Helgrammites are the nymphal version of a fishfly. Very similar to dobsonflies, not sure if it's just 2 names for same bug or if they describe different species. Looks kind of like a huge stonefly with the flat wings.

google dobsonfly and you'll get pictures of the bugs, or very similar bugs. If you see them, be a bit careful, they can bite pretty hard!
