

Subject: : Caddisflies (Order: Trichoptera)

Topic: : Grannoms Caddis - Brachycentrus americanus

Re: Grannoms Caddis - Brachycentrus americanus

Author: : dryflyguy

Date: : 2012/4/11 12:35:53

URL:

Quote:

pcray1231 wrote:

I'd add that they are common in Western PA too, at least on larger waters. Oil, Tionesta, Brokenstraw, Allegheny River, Neshannock, etc. I'd expect them on the Clarion too, but never encountered them there.

I used to see a caddis on the clarion river in april that had a medium gray wing, with an olive colored body - size #16. Not quite sure what it was - but I don't believe it was a grannom.

Whatever it was, the fish rose nicely to it - and a #16 gray caddis matched it quite well