Oops! I should have checked the original post date. I couldn't understand why Frederick would post as though he were just beginning... My bad.

Well since we took the bait so to speak lets ride with your post before this one. Actually the words "two big fish".

How about we talk about not catching any fish at all. Or catching that one fish when nobody is catching anything. What does it take to catch a trout in frog water? In flood conditions?

If we are talking about competition what does it take to not be overwhelmed? To even want to join the madness and to stick with it year after year without making the rooster?

That would be an interesting post to say the least. And I think you could tell it well. :)
