I have done some research on the pros and cons of wire vs. flouro. The wire I have heard even a good fish can break off wire and if it kinks it is significantly weakened. The flouro can obviously get cut too but from what I can tell from talking to other people it is very rare. The flouro gives you a little bit of an advantage over wire when catching inadvertent fish (bass, walleye). It seems that the guys that do use the wire dont get as many "bonus" fish. The fish I missed because of the bite off was a monster but it just gets my blood boiling to get out again after her. Either way if you are targetting musky it doesn't matter what you use they are not leader shy at all so I guess it is just personal preference.
