

Subject: : Mayflys (Order: Ephemeroptera )

Topic: : Cream Cahill - Maccaffertium Interpuncatatum

Re: One from last year

Author: : Maurice

Date: : 2012/4/17 21:13:53

URL:

Actually I got straight to the point. I will leave the over-analyzation (pun intended) to the fast typists.

I agree though; my indicators were: two tails, Mottled wings, barred legs. Color less brown, more yellow/cream sent me to cahill (maccaffertium/old stenonema). Had to go to trout nut to get the species.

As for biological markers, meh.....March Browns are typically a week or more before the cahills and a size smaller. So it usually isn't an issue to get into that.