Epeorus don't have mottled wings. This bug clearly has mottled wings.

And I've NEVER heard Epeorus Vitreus described as a cahill of any type. I've heard them described by common names pink lady, sulphur, yellow quill, PED's, and little maryatt's, but never cahill.

I'm fairly certain you're looking at maccaffertium genus. It's just that the genus has a bunch of different species that I can't tell apart, so I have no faith that I'd get the species correct.
