You goin to the jam? If so, and if it doesn't rain hard (yeah right, lol), and you stay well past dark, I can about guarantee you'll catch a spinner fall.

Staying past dark is key. I've seen em come early but most often they don't hit the water till the moment you need a flashlight to tie on a new fly.

Of course, if that doesn't work out, I can certainly put you on some trico spinner falls later in the summer. They're awfully reliable like that.
