Well, that's always a trade-off at the jam. Many of the "official" activities are Saturday evening, so you have that decision to fish, or socialize. To make matters worse, the famous waters are a minimum half hours drive from the campsite. The LJR is closer to an hour.

I never really liked that part of it. We put all the activities at the most productive fishing time. But I s'pose I don't have a better suggestion.

I probably cut out a little earlier than I would otherwise, but I still fish till I can't see. With a walk back to the car, taking off of waders, drive home, etc., I'm usually at the pavillion with a beer in hand somewhere around 11 p.m. Which means I'll miss the dinner and the guest speaker. But everyone will be up and socializing for at least another hour or two, the hardcore guys for 3 or 4 more hours. And I usually catch the raffle and the music.
