Lmao...Soaking rain an deluge are two entirely different things, a soaking rain will get down into the ground, Nor easters usually cause extensive flooding here in eastern Pa.

A steady storm once or twice a week will give the ground or earth far better absorbtion.I have a pretty nice size garden all raised beds, been broadforking the beds this week,, the ground is extremely dry, and yes i amend the soil with a liberal 4-5 inches of compost on each bed which helps soil keep moisture as well as feed the soil an plants.
