I am learning so much since I have joined paflyfish. Each time a new topic opens up I get inspired to learn it and go from there. This is really great stuff.

So my mind starts racing with questions like: how long after the spinner fall do the eggs hatch, how long after that until the first molt, come fall How well developed will the nymphs be?

I'm sure these topics will arise here and we'll have plenty of info when the time has come. I'm just expressing how each new nugget of info leads to more exploration. What a wonderful thing!
