I caught a Green Drake spinner fall last year on Penns in early June. It was awesome. I had planned on fishing well after dark to hopefully have a chance to tie into a nice one but got ran off of the stream by a serious thunderstorm. You really can't appreciate how bright lightning is until you are standing waist deep in the middle of stream such as Penns with a 9' lighting rod in your hand and a bolt lets loose right over you. I was amazed how some of the Penns creek die hards continued to fish as though that was normal. However, spinnerfalls are great to witness whether you catch any fish or not and I will never forget that evening.
