I have heard some comments about Orvis as an "evil empire" but by no means is that a universal sentiment. I think their stuff is typically of appropriate quality for the price. They have always treated me well on customer service issues. I don't buy high-end items from them or anyone else, but if I hit the lottery, I already have plans to replace my equipment with some of the better items from the Orvis catalogue. Then anglers can snicker at me behind my back saying I just stepped out of an Orvis catalogue-- and they'll be absolutely correct. One item I really covet is the CFO reel.
