atlantis - I'll defer to Brain on the Valley Glen area as that's one of the areas of the stream I haven't explored a whole lot.

As far as around the Rt. 39 bridge...there's a fairly deep slow section there since there's a lowhead dam just downstream of the 39 bridge that backs the water up for a little ways upstream. I don't think you're supposed to come within a couple hundred feet of the dam on the upstream side, but I've seen guys fishing up there. I've only fished below the dam...there's a little park down there where you can access the stream. Pretty good from the dam wash down to the bridge on Hanover St. They just replaced that bridge (Hanover St.) though, and I haven't fished down there since. There used to be some good current holes along the pilings.
