Well that's quite a talent but not quite as fun as it is for picking out redneck fly fishermen. They're much harder to detect with their deer antler decals, camo and smell of pork rinds.

Too bad Orvis hasn't picked up a camo line. I find it highly effective. Pork rinds float if you should drop them and the massive buck decals draw attention away from me possibly having a G.Loomis or Sage in my car.

I'm sorry but my kid has all sorts of nice stuff and still wears either some stupid plaid shorts or fuzzy pajama bottoms under his waders with hunting socks and flip flops or hunting boots until he hits the water. BIG buck decal on the car and he does catch fish!!

I don't think yinz should worry about what he wears, especially if he brings the beer.
