

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : type of "sulphur" ?

Re: type of "sulphur" ?

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2012/5/11 7:29:53

URL:

Quote:

troutbert wrote:

That sounds like what we call an "Orange Cahill" around here. Very beautiful bug. I've tied some imitations with a body of orange Glo-Bug yarn. That might seem over-the-top, but if you want a body that is ORANGE, that will do it. The trout took the fly well.

Really? That orange? I've never run across one before. Where are they found?