

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Zingers (Simms and Fishpond)

Re: Zingers (Simms and Fishpond)

Author: : jdaddy

Date: : 2012/5/11 16:54:55

URL:

Simms is not as much of a zinger as it is a retractor. Having said that, they incorporate them into their waders, jackets, vests and bags. Given those applications I have quite a few of them and have never had an issue with them losing recoil ability or breaking. I use them quite extensively. The recoil material they use seems to be identical to Fishponds. It's pretty simple stuff. Mechanical zingers will always have a greater tendency to fail.