OK! You have me miffed BigJohn. Some of us that upland bird hunt that stop for tea are not to be trifled with!!

I hunt and train bird dogs. I also bought my kid, yes kid a new pair of Orvis waders. PG3's. It depends on how much you fish and what you need in gear. This kid lives it. I will probably die in my mildew spotted Guide Series from Gander. His Hodgemans after 2 years are shot. Yes some people have a ton of extra cash laying around and buy every new thing out there and it gets me too when I empty my checkbook. If you have a good store that supports its product and you need something in a size no one else sells and it's recommended from guides that you know you buy them. They are awesome waders. They seem heavy but are lighter than the ones he has now and are so much more sturdy and seem tons more durable. I checked out every inch. Yes they breathe. We support what works. If they leak you'll be the first person I'll contact while I'm eating crow.
