I'm in. Been fishing the same old stretch of Neshaminy, so would love to try something different, but anywhere is fine with me. Heard Tohickon has some smallies, but wouldn't know where to go.

"Trout Streams of PA" gives a great write up of Valley Creek with maps. Wild population of browns. might be good for a day trip.

Also there is Tulpehocken Creek in Berks County near Reading. "Trout Streams" calls it the most productive in SE PA. It is delayed harvest, artificials only.

I'm working the next 3 Saturdays, but would be able to hit the stream in the late afternoon or evening? Fridays or Sundays all day good for me with enough notice.

Do we want to keep it local or go further out?
