try even smaller midges, size 22, 24 in different colors and patterns (cdc midge, or thread body and 3 or four pieces of elk hair for wings), i know you said you tried a smorgasbord of flies, did you throw any terrestrials, sometimes even the most selective trout cant turn down a size 14 crowe beetle. Also consider sky conditions and water clarity, was it bright/sunny?, sometimes these conditions cause a lot of shadows from your line that tip the fish off, in that case, not much you can do

Sky was clear and sunny. using fine furreled leader and 6x tippet. I just wondered if anyone could point me in direction of what could be hatching. I didn't see anything come off till after dark then it was a small yellow mayfly. I will have to order hooks smaller than a 20 and start tying.

Thanks
