Your probably fishing the correct patterns just in the wrong manor. Here is a syquence to try next time your on the water and mayflies are hatching:

Fish a PT as a dry fly dead drifted, down and across then straight down stream and a slow stripping retrieve.

If that don't work apply frogs fanny and try all 3 above techniques again.

No luck on the above add a small weight 24" or more and try again. Add frogs fanny if necessary.

When bugs are emerging it's all about finding where in the water column fish are eating them. Remember the fish are chasing the bugs they are eating so you need to present yours in the same moving way.

Presentation trumps patterns 10:1 Always.
