

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : why all the hate?

Re: why all the hate?

Author: : JackM

Date: : 2008/4/4 20:26:05

URL:

I have only ever worn Orvis waders, except my neoprenes. My new waders are the Clearwater as I have resigned myself that waders are going to be a disposable item for me no matter what I spend and my first pair were Clearwaters and they were the most comfortable pair I've ever owned.

I also like their tippet-- no more expensive really than any other brand-- and I covet the flybox we got Gino in Tennessee-- it's the one made of lightweight material with little magnets on the corner. I'd spring for one of my own, but I'm waiting for them to make it with nubbytack rather than foam. Oh, and I once bought a Orvis brand March Brown dun from Slate Run Tackle for $2.10, but I've been afraid to use it at that price, so I just dropped it in my safe-deposit box with all my other precious valuables.