If I roll through a stop sign it is a violation and if a get ticketed I should pay and maybe I will be more careful next time. Did I hurt anything? Not this time, but you never know about next time, so I should be more careful.

BTW, if the sampling was done after the fact then how can you show there was no violation? If there were adverse levels of anything, they have already been diluted or traveled down stream.

I frankly don't have time or interest to check every little detail on how DEP or any other regulator does their job. I just expect to be protected. Besides, it's not like DEP has been a thorn in the side of this industry.
