Wonder when it will hit the Codorus?

This has actually kept me up at night a time or to.

It's the biggest fear for Codorus TU. We are actually going to be constructing wader wash stations for placement at the parking areas. Our hope is that anglers will wash their boots prior to entering the stream. I only hope we can get them installed before it's too late. A bonus to their placement would be educating other fishermen who are unaware of the didymo problem. We already have placed several different types of signs with information about it and how to reduce its spread. Unfortunately, I believe most just walk by them without reading.
