i know for a fact that in Maine where i fish , a website under the direction of Kevin McKay guide/website forum owner actually has taken it a step further they have boot stations set up that you take the cover off an step into for a few seconds there is light bristled brush with a chain attached too to wash ypour woots real good also you can dunk your waders too, theres stuff in there that kills the didymo on contact wash before you get in wash when you get out.

He ought to get a conservation medal for that.

There is also clearly identifiable pictures of the stuff an instructions on how to clean yer gear properly.
