Well, I hope to finally land the sucker This Friday after work. In all likelihood, my brother has a better shot with his spinning gear. The hold is pretty peculiar. It is this unassuming super deep hole. Not sure how it formed, but we would have never found it unless my brother stepped into it one day while retrieving a snag. One step and you go from 2' to 6-7'. All of your catches are pretty sweet, but have you ever caught two smallies on the same lure and then hooked yourself in the crotch? Good thing for my brother that I was there to step in and rectify the situation without any vital damage.

You really need to be meticulous with the yough. Eventually you will uncover a couple dynamite spots. I dont know the river too well, but I know it has had its moments for me.
