I just like having my hand as close to the reel as possible. Have you ever seen those "beaver tail" grips?

Stripping my line accross my body and letting it fall on the opposite side of my legs as my rod hand keeps me from having the line catch the butt. The uplocking reel seat shouldn't matter much as I tend to get my line caught there too, but oddly less than when I use my 8wt with the big old fighting butt on it.
