Well looking out the window this looks more like mid January than we've had weather wise. Right now it is snowing and blowing and they have a lake effect snow warning thru tonight. The creeks are pretty slushy due to the colder temps at night but the water level has got better. I just talked with an angler who did fair yesterday, him and his 9 yr old son caught 3. I wouldn't expect the fishing conditions to be very good today, but here in NW PA things can change pretty quickly so you may be able to keep the bait flying and the fish jumping for now.
