

---

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Dodson fly

Re: Dodson fly

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2012/7/7 8:33:00

URL:

I love 'em - they're near the top of my list.

Of course, helgrammites are mainly associated with bass fishing and - at least in my experience - are much more numerous in warmer rivers. I fish with helgy nymph flies frequently, esp in the early to mid summer months. As Afishinado said, a dark marabou fly will hammer bass. I personally prefer more accurate patterns. The pic below shows a couple naturals with one of my nymphs. I don't bother with imitating the adults although I suppose it might make for some good fishing under certain circumstances.

Attach file:

 Would the Real Helgys Please Stand Up.jpg (121.56 KB)

