Afish-san,

You are correct. The humble and simple child sees the matrix of the universe with an uncluttered eye and grasps the sublime simplicity of the one fly approach we embrace in Tenkahda.

The switch and string is not unlike our Tentkara rods, a child's wooden sword to our katanas, but with the wide eyed grasp of all of life's inner mysteries for one to explore.

If only more people had your open mind instead of their closed Western minds, and their hobbling fly reels.
