

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Smallie Dump

Re: Smallie Dump

Author: : BlkLgbEaDheAd09

Date: : 2012/7/15 9:57:31

URL:

Quote:

cricketontherun wrote:

Funny you should ask; Most all of these fish were caught during high sun hours of the day first off! I caught most on either a Murdich Minnow or natural Foxy Red. When things got really hot I'd switch up to a jointed slider that resembles a J7/J9 rapala (no shame here) in black and white. Keep in mind these are all pre-spawn fish in a unique environment. Most of what we have been catching lately in Western PA has been in the 10-16" range, and mostly on white slider/poppers.

thats awesome dude! ive only caught a few smallies on the fly. i went out for the first time right before i left for afghanistan this past spring, and the first thing im doin when i get home next may-june will be tying up some smallie flies. cant wait!