Now that the temps are getting too warm to target Trout, I've been doing some Bass fishing and I landed a nice Largemouth with a Crayfish Fly pattern, however the past couple times I've gone out for Bass they just kind of look the other way as I'm stripping in the Crayfish. I thought for sure they would be going after this fly like crazy, but there not. I also hooked onto another Bass using a White Wolly Bugger, but my knot slipped and he got away. I ordered some poppers from Cabelas so we'll see how they work out.

So, what fly's do you guys use for Bass, and how do you present them in the water? Also, why time of day is best for Bass? I was out at 6:30 this morning and they wanted nothing to do with anything I would throw at them. I know Bass aren't too picky so time shouldn't matter I would think. Right?
