Brand and model wise?

I currently use a pair of Okuma aluminum cavalla pliers. I mainly purchased them for spin fishing, but I find myself bringing them with me everytime I got out. They are a solid aluminum plier with side cutters. I like them for the money I paid for them(wanna say I purchased them 50-60% off), but I am considering the ross pescador pliers. They basically look like the more expensive and better quality version of my okuma's.

I used to use a pair of $2 ebay hemostats. They felt cheap as hell, but got the job done for removing flies too small for the cavalla pliers. This spring I bought a pair of matte black dr. slick hemostats. For the $9 they are totally worth it. They feel solid, grip so much better, and look better.

What is the difference between forceps and pliers?
