A person much more experienced and familiar with the streams suggested that Bushkill creek or the pohopoco would be good options for a group outing. So, I'm tossing them out there.

I'm not too familiar with either of those (I know where they are and have researched them a little, but never fished them), but that's good...if there's enough interest, we'd likely need more than just one stream in an area to send groups out on. You can't really logistically send 20 guys out onto a Brookie stream!
