

Subject: : Fly Fishing Events and Meet-ups

Topic: : Newbie Brookie Expedition/Jam?

Re: Newbie Brookie Expedition/Jam?

Author: : Stagger_Lee

Date: : 2012/7/31 17:00:00

URL:

Quote:

pccray wrote:

Stagger, yes, smaller than Valley or the Little Lehigh. Usually anyway. But the differences are far bigger than stream size, it's a different world altogether. In no ways comparable regarding technique and tactics.

That should be interesting .. I have enough going thru my head with this game and I'm sure a lil more will do wonders. Calling dibs on the group with the most patient 'elder'. 😊

From the photos I've seen, the small creeks are really pretty. Now so I understand and from what I think I read ... since the brookies aren't fished as hard they aren't as picky/smart???

Also, do the spook as easy as the harder fished fish? I understand they probably spook and you still want to be as cautious as possible but are they as sensitive as the fish in Valley for example?