

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Newbie Brookie Expedition/Jam?

Re: Newbie Brookie Expedition/Jam?

Author: : salmonoid

Date: : 2012/8/5 20:25:15

URL:

I'd be game for a NC or Central PA brookie jam; so long as you can split up into smaller groups, both regions would work quite well. Petticoat Junction might work as a location in NC PA, but I'd caution against fishing the big name streams like Slate and Cedar, on what would be termed a newbie brookie jam, as they are tough streams to fish. Quiet Oaks Campground outside Cross Fork was tossed around as a site for the Jam a year or two ago, and there was also a campground used for the Quill Gordon Jam this spring, near Galeton or Coudersport. And, for that matter, the State Forest lands provide ample free camping, so long as you don't need electric or non-primitive toilets..

I always try to make a NC PA run sometime in June or July, and would enjoy adding this element to a trip that is either usually solo or with one other partner.