

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : New Penns Creek Information

Re: New Penns Creek Information

Author: : TheGDOtter

Date: : 2012/8/10 16:29:48

URL:

Correct me if I'm wrong, but I thought the reason fish died when caught in warm water conditions was that after the fight they cannot absorb enough oxygen from the water to flush the lactic acid out of their system. I would assume that shocking the water does not exhaust the fish like catching it on the fly, so it won't kill them.

That's just what someone told me,...sounds reasonable, but anyone know for sure?