Yes, last year, my buddy and I fished meadow a week after the last stocking and we even talked on the way over about how crowded it would be. We literally saw 3 guys from the slides to the cascades.

Perhaps because it was 30 degrees colder last year during that week...

Couple months ago you were thanking me for a report and promising to post your own..remember this?

Re: loyalhanna?

It was lower three weeks ago when I fished it and there were a lot of fish stacked up where there was water. They should have spread out a little by now and hopefully taking more than the egg patterns they wanted back then.
