My brother uses a pair with the hook dislodger on it. Actually, you can simply by the dislodger as well. He seems to like both. You just push and most (debarbed) hooks just pop out. His are matte black.

I joked that I might spray my shiney forceps with black Rustoleum...then I seriously thought about doing just that...

Tip for using forceps at the bench, I use tiny rubber bands up near the finger loops when I have a task that requires tension on the jaws, or for when the locking notches aren't exactly where I need them.
