

---

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Meadow Run, DHALO, 4/12 and 4/13...WHAT A WEEKEND!!!

Re: Meadow Run, DHALO, 4/12 and 4/13...WHAT A WEEKEND!!!

Author: : tomgamber

Date: : 2008/4/29 17:33:19

URL:

Quote:

highsticker wrote:

At best, someone would read it and think "hmmm, Meadow, I haven't fished that for years. Maybe I'll go give it a try.". Whether it's because they saw big fish being caught there recently or just the mere mention of the stream, I think you have to agree that it would increase traffic to that particular stream.

Thats a good example of why they should be here. Remember, everyone that fishes meadow because they read something on a board is a person who won;t be at another stream that someone else wishes no ever reported on. I understand your point, I just don't agree with it. If it were a wild brookie stream, I might, but Meadow has always gotten fished a lot over the last 15 years I've lived within an hour of it. Even in the dead of summer when the sliders are in mass there are more fishermen than I would expect to see. Its got special regs which make it a much bigger target than other ATWs or even a Class A.

Quote:

I'll take my thread on the Loyalhanna last year for example, since it seems to have been so scrutinized here. I didn't ask to see pictures of recent catches, or to know exactly where the fish are.

I looked back and I realize you did specifically ask about flows but its still information that may cause someone to single it out as a place to fish based on ANY information.

Quote:

then why not just take some nightcrawlers out?

I've only ever fished the delayed harvest section so I wouldn't know about night crawlers which would be illegal.

Quote:

We've already disgraced this thread, and to the OP, I apologize. I should've posted this as it's own thread somewhere else.

Maybe...but you're not the first with this concern and you won't be the last...these boards exist for the purpose of sharing ideas, information and concerns...