

---

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Warmwater fun with my 3wt

Re: Warmwater fun with my 3wt

Author: : 1wt

Date: : 2012/8/18 23:39:31

URL:

Quote:

hey 1wt,

what parts of Marburg do you fish for white Perch , what nearby roads, access points etc, I have a kayak and can get to them if I need to.

Sorry for the delayed post! I haven't looked at the WW for a while, I'm obsessed with the OT forum?

Smith Station Rd has two access points, both are great, this is the best way to get to the deep water.

Sailboat Launch is also good, but now filled with weeds pretty good.

The Marina is also good.

When the white perch are on top, a fly rod is a beautiful thing. I smack them pretty good with a 3wt. But 95% of the time you have to use a UL spin rod to catch the perch. I use 2lb NanoFil (.002 diameter) translucent super line with 1/80 oz jigheads with "Microspoons" soft mini plastics or I tie my own leadhead streamers.

I'm the only guy in Lake Marburg that uses a fly rod..... so I'm pretty easy to spot! LOL

Send me a PM.