Ok. So south FL late summer. The flats aren't going to be gangbusters, and the only place they might be hot for bones is Biscayne Bay in Miami, which has bonefish spookier than Letort trout. However, tarpon and snook will be available at night, and false albies will be on fire just off the coast around Palm Beach. You don't need to be Lefty Kreh to catch either. When in Cancun, call Pesca Maya. They run a bus from the hotels all the way to their lodge, where you can fish for permit (you probably won't be catching one), bonefish (you should catch a bunch), and tarpon (who knows?). Pesca Maya is great. Save your money for that. Ask for Daurin, a great guide. Bring size 4 white rabbit gotchas.
